16. Your rights as a data subject and derogations to your rights

The contact person for matters related to the rights of the data subjects is the person specified in section 1 of this statement.

Withdrawal of consent (Art. 7 of the GDPR)

You have the right to withdraw your consent if the processing of personal data is based on consent. Withdrawing consent has no effect on the legality of any processing that occurred before the withdrawal.

Right of access (Art. 15 of the GDPR)

You have the right to be informed whether your personal data is being processed, and what personal data is processed in the project. You can also request a copy of your processed personal data.

Right to rectification (Art. 16 of the GDPR)

If there are inaccuracies or errors in the processing of your personal data, you have the right to request its rectification or completion.

Right to erasure (Art. 17 of the GDPR)

You have the right to request that your personal data be erased in the following cases:

- a) the personal data is no longer necessary in relation to the purposes for which it was collected or otherwise processed;
- b) you withdraw the consent on which the processing was based, and there is no other legal basis for the processing;
- c) you object to the processing (see the description of the right to object below), and there are no overriding legitimate grounds for the processing;
- d) the personal data has been unlawfully processed; or
- e) the personal data has to be erased for compliance with a legal obligation in the European Union or member state law to which the controller is subject;

However, the right to erasure cannot be exercised if the erasure of data renders impossible or seriously impairs the achievement of the objectives of that processing.

Right to restriction of processing (Art. 18 of the GDPR)

You have the right to restrict the processing of your personal data in any of the following circumstances:

- a) you contest the accuracy of the personal data, in which case the processing is restricted for a period enabling Turku UAS to verify the accuracy of the personal data;
- b) the processing is unlawful, and you oppose the erasure of the personal data and request the restriction of its use instead;
- c) Turku UAS no longer needs the personal data for the purposes of the processing, but you require the data for the establishment, exercise or defence of a legal claim;
- d) you have objected to the processing of the personal data (see below for more details) pending the verification of whether the legitimate grounds of the controller override those of the data subject.

Right to data portability (Art. 20 of the GDPR)

You have the right to receive the personal data concerning you that you have provided to Turku UAS in a structured, commonly used and machine-readable format, and the right to transmit the data to another controller without hindrance from Turku UAS, where the processing is based on consent or a contract, and carried out by automated means.

When exercising your right to transfer data from one system to another, you have the right to have your personal data transferred directly from one controller to another if technically possible.

Right to object (Art. 21 of the GDPR)

You have the right to object to the processing of your personal data if the processing is based on the public interest or a legitimate interest. In this case, Turku UAS will not be able to process your personal data unless it can demonstrate that there are compelling legitimate grounds for the processing which override your interests, rights and freedoms as the data subject, or for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims. Turku University of Applied Sciences may also continue to process your personal data if the processing is necessary for the performance of a task carried out for reasons of public interest.

Derogation from the rights

In certain individual cases, the rights described in this section may be derogated from on the grounds provided for in the General Data Protection Regulation and the Finnish Data Protection Act to the extent that the rights render impossible or seriously impair the achievement of a scientific or historical research purpose, or a statistical purpose. The need to derogate from the rights is always assessed on a case-by-case basis, and the data subject is always informed.

Right of appeal

You have the right to file a complaint with the Office of the Data Protection Ombudsman in the event of a suspected breach of the applicable data protection legislation in the processing of your personal data.
